

Hound Puts You in Control of Your Job Search

November 02, 2009

This press release informs the readers that Hound.com offers a huge range of all categories of jobs available in the market. The site also lists those openings that generally go unadvertised and job postings here are posted directly by employers. This website allows job seekers to manage their job search well.

Hound.com is definitely one of the premier job sites for job-seekers world-wide. It brings the notice of its member's jobs from all employer websites from the USA and all over the world. This is one all-inclusive job portal that not only takes into view the requirements and priorities of job-seekers in particular but also pays ample amount of attention to the needs of the employers and recruiters as well. Apart from compiling all the jobs available in the market, Hound.com also takes care to post the ones that at times go unadvertised and unnoticed.

The sole factor that sets apart Hound from the rest of the job portals on cyber space and gives it an edge over others is that you get to see here lots of fresh new results each day and even those you would never find anywhere else. With Hound.com you have the option to choose from a whopping 600,000 jobs that have been gathered from more than 30,000 employer websites. The numbers include quite a few quality jobs that go unpublished. Hound is all the more amazing as a job portal as it does not act like most of the other head hunting sites by overlooking a lot of job opportunities and openings. Thanks to the efforts of Hound its members are among the lucky few who get knowledge of such jobs and can apply for them with practically no delay at all. The site is feature-rich and allows members to manage their job search well.

Hound is also unique for being the only site that puts you in complete control of your own job search. At the portal you can carry out your own custom search according to the opportunities you would prefer. This becomes more possible because the very moment job researchers at Hound come across a job at some employer website that is suitable for you, they would let you know of it. Another important point is that Hound is a members-only job portal in which only its registered members can apply for the jobs on display, thereby reducing the number of applications for a particular job.

The best thing about Hound is that it doesn't allow advertisers to post any jobs onto the site. Advertising is a strict "no-no" at Hound. So whenever you communicate with an employer or recruiter through Hound you can be assured of direct interaction devoid of any intermediation. The job searches bear results at Hound as all of them correspond to authentic job availabilities with the employers. You will never find any job advertisements by recruiters at Hound. The jobs come in directly from the employer websites making this portal one of the purest job portals ever.

Hound.com is a user-oriented site keeping all the applications at the portal more than easy for the users. Once a member at Hound you will just fall in love with the kind of advantages you will get to enjoy. All those who are already members of the site have been fortunate enough to get interview calls within just days of joining. Many users have even testified to the fact that Hound has offered them with better prospects and a steady career graph within a short span of time. One of the satisfied customer thanked by saying, "Within just 7 days of using Hound I found the position of an Executive Assistan by just 3 or 4 follow up calls and just one interview. Thank you Hound.com."

For any further queries or information, check out www.hound.com.