

Jobs with Dana Holding Corporation

Dana Holding Corporation is a recognized leader in the supply of driveline products, power technologies, and genuine service parts for light-and heavy-duty vehicle manufacturers. The Maumee, Ohio-based company's major product offerings include Spicer brand axles, driveshafts, tire management products, and transmissions, as well as Victor Reinz sealing products, and Long thermal products.

The company's beginnings trace back to 1904 when Clarence Spicer decided to leave Cornell University, where he was studying engineering, and try his luck in business. The success of Spicer's company, which was initially housed in the corner of a New Jersey printing press, depended heavily on his patent for the first practical universal joint for the powering of an automobile. Charles Dana, an attorney, politician, and financier, came onboard and the company took off.

Today Dana Holding has 32 US facilities, as well as operations in Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela, Brazil, South Africa, Spain, France, Germany, Italy, the United Kingdom, Hungary, Austria, Sweden, Australia, Thailand, India, China, South Korea, and Japan. The company currently employs an estimated 22,500 individuals in a broad range of areas from assembly line staff to corporate professionals.
