

North Carolina Government Jobs

Introduction- North Carolina is a state in south east United States. It includes 100 counties and Raleigh is the state capital. In the last five decades, the economy of the state and transformed from being heavily reliant on furniture and tobacco to a diversified one with finance, biotechnology and engineering sectors.

About North Carolina Government: The North Carolina Government is divided in three branches- judicial, legislative and executive. They consist of its state court system, bicameral legislature known as General Assembly and the Governor led Council of the State.

The North Carolina constitution delineates the function and structure of the government of the state. The state has thirteen seats in the House of Representatives as well as 2 in the Senate. Some of the recent changes in the politics of the state include the changes made to a Republican legislature post the 2010 elections. Most of the council as well as the governorship of the state are under the Democratic control.

Employment at the North Carolina Government: North Carolina Government Jobs are exciting, dynamic and very challenging. The state offers job opportunities to seasoned professionals as well as college graduates in a wide range of fields with competitive benefits. The Divisions of Employment and Workforce Development in the state have partnered and established a Career Transition Center for state employees.

The center is staffed by a professional transition team and offers a wide range of services such as interviewing skills, computer and internet access, resume writing and job search. The North Carolina Government is dedicated to offering equal employment opportunity to all its employees and applicants.

Careers in North Carolina Government include a statewide plan that covers medical and hospital expenses and is available at no cost to the state employees. The state also offers an Assistance Program to all state employees. It is a confidential program designed by the state government to assist employees as well as their family members to solve personal problems.

The state puts in efforts to assist retired and active state employees. To support this motive it developed a life planning program. This program has been developed to help motivate employees to learn more about their retirement and employment benefits by securing the future of their families more effectively.

---

Usual North Carolina Government Job Openings: Jobs with North Carolina Government are available in a wide range of areas and state agencies, as given below:

- Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services
- Department of Commerce
- Department of Insurance
- Department of Health and Human Services
- Department of Labor
- Department of Justice

Current North Carolina Government Job Openings: Some of the positions that are currently available in North Carolina Government are

- Accounting Technician
- Administrative Assistant
- Assistant State Auditor
- Business Officer
- Chemist
- Deputy Clerk
- Educational Developmental Aide
- Forestry Technician